122 Total Contacts [Approx. 18/day]

Source of Calls

On-View: MACRO Crews survey the pilot programs designated impact zones to self-dispatch, by identifying and making contact with individuals that may require MACRO support. The purpose of this practice to build familiarity with the population and the impact zones MACRO will serve. In addition, On-view interventions have been focused on identifying an incident before it becomes a call into emergency services (Police, Fire, or Medical).

Incident Definitions:

Wellness Check: MACRO Responders identify people at risk of harm and seek to help the person minimize or decrease any safeguarding risks. Crews ascertain whether the individual is alive, breathing and conscious but are limited to providing basic medical care, calling for medical transport, and offering information on organizations that can provide further services.

Sleeper: A Wellness Check performed with an individual who is first identified as sleeping.

Behavioral Health Concern: A person struggling with their behavioral health brought on by stress, addiction, depression, anxiety, relationship problems, grief, mood disorders, or other psychological concerns that interfere with their behaviors or cognition.

Indecent Exposure: The exposure of one's body, especially the genitals or a woman's breasts, in a public place or in a way considered offensive.

Panhandling: Any solicitation made in person upon any street or public place in which a person requests an immediate donation from another person. The term does not include passively standing or sitting.

1035	6/4/22	Macro unit 3 came across a ~ 35/yo female sleeping on the corner of 3rd and Jackson street. Upon approaching and engaging with her we learned that she was looking into a resource called BACS which could possibly help her with housing. We were unable to reach the phone number on the website but will keep trying to contact them in hopes of being able to transport her. We have her water, socks and a blanket. Macro 3 then left scene after there were no apparent injuries or illnesses.
