

Board Commissioner

Lisa Herrinton is a research scientist and epidemiologist at the Kaiser Permanente Northern California Division of Research. Before working in public health, she was an environmental health scientist, high school science and math teacher, and Peace Corps volunteer in Africa. As a public health scientist, Lisa has studied important questions in public health and health services delivery and reviewed research and grant applications for federal agencies, and Research Centers, using Community Based Participatory Research methods to improve the health of communities through partnerships, coalitions, capacity building, and systems development.

CITY OF OAKLAND