

Board Commissioner

Marjorie Freedman is a retired professor from San Jose State University. Her research focused on obesity, nutrition labeling, portion size, food insecurity, and community nutrition. She advocated for removing sugar-sweetened beverages from vending machines in San Jose Unified School District and implemented healthy vending policies in San Jose libraries. Her work earned recognition from Michelle Obama's Let's Move! initiative and the California Center for Public Health Advocacy. Though new to Oakland, she looks forward to contributing to the community's health. She enjoys hiking, gardening, reading, and family time.
